The release of Lions safety Daniel Bullocks on Thursday wiped clean the slate of the worst five-year stretch of drafting in NFL history. From 2002 through 2006, the Lions drafted 39 players — five of whom were taken in the top 10 picks. Bullocks represented the last remaining player on the roster from that stretch of drafting by former president and general manager Matt Millen that ultimately set the franchise back who knows how far. Current Lions general manager Martin Mayhew, who took over for Millen when he was fired in September 2008, was recently asked how the franchise stands today, as opposed to when he took over for Millen.

Is the curse finally over for the Lions? The Detroit News points out that now the Lions and fans can breathe easy, as the Matt Millen Era is officially over as with the release of safety Daniel Bullocks Thursday, the team no longer has any draft picks on their roster:

I wish to publicly and sincerely apologize to the Moats family, my colleagues in the Dallas Police Department, and to all those who have been rightfully angered by my actions on March 18, 2009. After stopping Mr. Moats's vehicle, I showed poor judgment and insensitivity to Mr. Moats and his family by my words and actions. Officer Robert Powell's statement said.

His wife Tamishia Moats said she'd like to hear the apology personally, but that she, too, would definitely accept it. Powell, who has been placed on paid leave pending an investigation, issued a statement Friday through his attorneys.

Texans running back Ryan Moats said on ABC's "Good Morning America" Monday that he accepts the apology offered by a Dallas police officer who stopped him with a drawn gun in a hospital parking lot while his mother-in-law was dying inside and he hopes Officer Robert Powell was sincere in his apology.

This is interesting. The Dallas Stars are 6-1-3 when leading after two periods. It's interesting because Dallas basically stood pat at the end of last season, so while they didn't get better, they shouldn't have gotten worse.

Mike Heika says that while coach Dave Tippett is on a long leash, it's still a leash.

Also, did anyone else know Todd Bertuzzi's uncle was the arbiter who settled the Eric-Lindros-traded-to-two-teams thing in 1991? Apparently Uncle Bert is some kind of power forward magnet.

Finally, my fantasy hockey column is up on RotoRob.

In all likelihood Eric Wood will continue to start at center with Hangartner likely serving in a reserve capacity Sunday, how to make a basketball jersey, but it's at least possible that Hangartner could be on the field.

Here are some thoughts on the San Diego Chargers' 37-10 victory over the Buffalo Bills:

What it means: The Bills continue to fall apart after suffering their sixth straight defeat. Buffalo is 5-8 and needs this season to end soon. The Bills had a chance to finish with a winning record after their fast start. But the team secured its seventh straight non-winning season with Sunday's blowout loss to San Diego.

What I liked: Buffalo receiver Steve Johnson had a big game. He caught four passes for 116 yards. It was Johnson's first 100-yard receiving game this season, college football jerseys, but it didn't make much of an impact. Buffalo's offense was held scoreless in the first half and never had a chance in this game.

What I didn't like: Bills quarterback Ryan Fitzpatrick had an awful performance. Fitzpatrick is very streaky and was 13 of 34 for 176 yards and an interception. Buffalo's franchise quarterback has failed to lift the Bills out of their funk. The defense didn't do much better. San Diego quarterback Philip Rivers threw for 240 yards and three touchdowns, personalized football jerseys, baseball jersey custom, and Buffalo allowed Chargers tailback Ryan Mathews to rush for 114 yards.

Road woes: Buffalo is now 1-6 on the road. The Bills' only win away from Ralph Wilson Stadium was in Week 1 against the Kansas City Chiefs.

What's next: The Bills will host the Miami Dolphins in a rematch from Week 11. Miami won the first meeting, authentic nfl jersey, 35-8. Tweet Tweet
